The book is divided into three sections: "The Body," "The Street," and "The City." Each section explores a different aspect of the relationship between fashion and the city. "The Body" examines how clothing can be used to express our identity and our relationship to the city. "The Street" looks at how fashion can be used to navigate the urban environment and to create a sense of community. "The City" explores how fashion can be used to shape the city itself and to create a more sustainable and livable urban environment.

The Noumenon: New Clothes Urbanomic Mono is a must-read for anyone interested in fashion, urbanism, or the relationship between the two. It is a groundbreaking book that offers a new perspective on the way we think about fashion and the city.

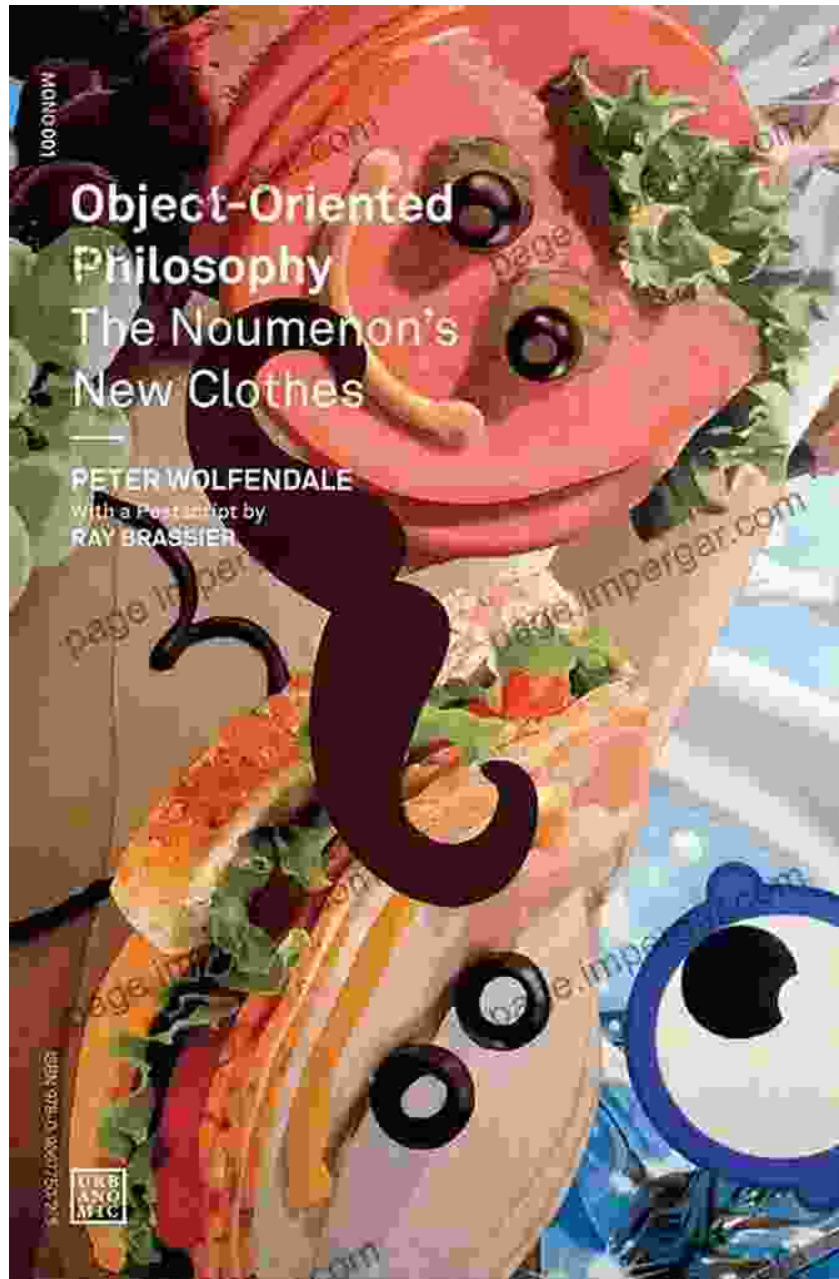

Reviews

"The Noumenon is a stunning and thought-provoking book that explores the relationship between fashion and the city in a new and exciting way. Mühe's photographs are beautiful and evocative, and Greenfield's essays are insightful and thought-provoking. This book is a must-read for anyone interested in fashion, urbanism, or the relationship between the two." - The New York Times

"The Noumenon is a groundbreaking book that challenges the way we think about fashion and the city. Mühe and Greenfield have created a work of art that is both beautiful and intellectually stimulating. This book is a must-read for anyone who wants to understand the complex relationship between fashion and the urban environment." - The Guardian
